

CARNIVORE

---

Biography

Carnivore is the joint efforts of composer, arranger, producer, and session musician Rob Mullins and actress, singer, and songwriter Danielle Bisutti. Bisutti and Mullins came together after being introduced at the 2003 Los Angeles Music Awards, where they were both nominees: Bisutti as Singer/Songwriter of the Year, and Mullins for Independent Jazz Artist of the Year. Soon after they met, Bisutti enrolled in Mullins' music teaching program, where they had instant musical chemistry and began collaborating with each other. For several years, the two enjoyed a co-writing and co-performing relationship, which ultimately led to the decision to record their first album together.

Carnivore was born in the summer of 2010, the jazz and lounge inspired brainchild of Mullins and Bisutti as a duo act. Bisutti brings to the table her multi-dimensional talents of not only singing and composing, but also her bold, sultry, and enchanting personality to the stage, which has engaged audiences in every live performance. Mullins, a music business veteran, brings unparalleled experience in arranging and jazz piano performance, creating a combined artistic effort that is fresh, unique, and a soundscape unlike anything in its genre. In their first EP entitled "First Taste," Carnivore puts a new, sexy treatment to classical jazz standards, as well as modern rock/pop songs, taking music that has been recorded by well known artists in the past and adding their own twist and vibe to each note. Bisutti and Mullins look forward to the worldwide, digital release of "First Taste" on September 28, 2010, and will be performing the music live throughout 2010, heading into 2011.
